

ENGLAND READY FOR EMERGENCY

Cabinet Meeting This Morning May, However, Have Reached a Peaceful Solution.

FLEET IS IN BATTLE ARRAY TODAY

Russian Minister Has Long Conference with the English Premier--The Outcome is Yet In Doubt.

[Special by Scripps-McLain.] London, Oct. 28.—A cabinet meeting was held this morning to discuss the dispute between Russia and Great Britain. Every member was present. The meeting ended at 1:45. The ministers left laughing and chatting, indicating that a peaceful settlement of the dispute had been reached. Just before the meeting ended Benckendorff arrived at the foreign office and later he and Lansdowne conferred at great length. It is presumed the Russian ambassador was informed of the cabinet's decision.

Hold Conference. London, Oct. 28.—The Russian ambassador had a conference with Lansdowne this morning lasting until nearly eleven. The French ambassador was also called to discuss the situation. Just before the meeting of the cabinet Lord Rothschild called on Premier Balfour in the interests of a peaceful settlement of questions at issue between Great Britain and Russia.

Submit to Arbitration. Paris, Oct. 28.—England has offered to submit the issues of the North sea incident to the international commission. It is believed Russia will accept this arrangement.

Hold Vessels. St. Petersburg, Oct. 28.—Rojestvensky has been ordered to detain vice all the warships which participated in the North sea affair.

Leave for East. Madrid, Oct. 28.—A telegram from Vigo states the Russian fleet has departed today for the far east.

More Protest. St. Petersburg, Oct. 28.—A protest has been received from the Swedish government regarding the firing upon the steamer Aldebaran by the Russian cruiser Friday night.

Vessels Leave. London, Oct. 28.—A dispatch to the Central News from Gibraltar says six British cruisers have left there, heading for the westward. It is believed their destination is Tangier. A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph says the cruisers have gone to Vigo.

Prepare for War. That the British admiralty is not convinced that a peaceable solution of the crisis is in sight is evidenced by the unprecedented energy with which the nation's naval strength is being concentrated in the channel.

Vice Admiral Rojestvensky's explanation, though it temporarily arrests the rush of events toward a dangerous culmination, does not eliminate the acute peril of war from the situation.

The explanation he offers is received with the utmost incredulity. Lord Lansdowne characterizes the circumstances he describes as "inconceivable," but admits that fresh light has been thrown upon the outrage, and diplomatic usage compels less urgent action.

British correspondents in St. Petersburg assert that the explanation is "home manufactured." The morning papers condemn it unanimously.

The Standard editorially describes it as the creation of a disordered imagination. Yesterday a deadlock had apparently been reached on the question of punishment. Now the situation is inextricably complicated.

On the one side there is the report of the Danish Minister of Marine to the Russian government that vessels were known to have been chartered in Hull and Sweden by the Japanese government for the purpose of attacking the Baltic fleet.

Fires Promiscuously. On the other hand, there are reports in this morning's dispatches that the Baltic fleet fired upon at least one German and one Norwegian vessel in the North sea where there was no suggestion of the proximity of torpedo boats.

"How much longer?" is the burden of the editorials in this morning's papers. The majority of the papers fall to see any peaceful solution of the problem. It is pointed out that the Hull fishermen can prove beyond the shadow of a doubt that there were no torpedo boats in the vicinity of the Degger bank on the night in question. Meanwhile England is making war preparations openly upon an unprecedented scale.

In the shadow of actual war, the British nation has sobered down. In London the developments of to-day are awaited calmly.

This morning Vice Admiral Beresford's squadron will sail from Gibraltar under scaled orders.

Mission of Fleet. It is his mission to bar the progress of the Russian Baltic fleet, which practically would constitute an act of war, or more to make an imposing demonstration in the straits of Gibraltar designed to intimidate Russia? That is the all-absorbing question.

The foreign office is most ominously silent. Lord Lansdowne, however, expresses the hope that a solution of the problem may yet be found.

Every available warship of England's navy in European waters has been ordered to join with all possible haste the squadron in home waters. The British squadron at Pola sailed at midnight. All vessels of the Mediterranean fleet in Greek waters have received orders to sail forthwith. The squadron at Flume, Hungary, has been instructed to join the Pola squadron at once and proceed westward under full steam.

Decks Are Cleared. With decks cleared for action, the British channel fleet is ready to sail this morning. A rumor that the combined fleets are concentrating for the purpose of making a sham attack on Gibraltar is ridiculed in naval clubs.

Whether for war or peace, the British admiralty is concentrating the nation's naval forces upon a scale and with a speed absolutely without precedent.

It is specifically denied by the Japanese minister in London that there were any Japanese war vessels of any description in the North sea. Officials of the British admiralty declare the presence of such vessels, unknown, to be impossible.

It was reported in London last night that a British ultimatum to Russia has been prepared. Its immediate dispatch was only prevented by the receipt of Admiral Rojestvensky's report.

There is a tendency in both official and unofficial circles to suspect that the Russian explanations of the affair are being manufactured at home.

The report that France would refuse to be embroiled in the event of the British government going to extremes was categorically denied in official circles in Paris.

France Seeks to Avert War. The French ambassador was incessantly occupied at the foreign office and at the Russian embassy. It is believed that France is exerting her influence to avert peril of a European war.

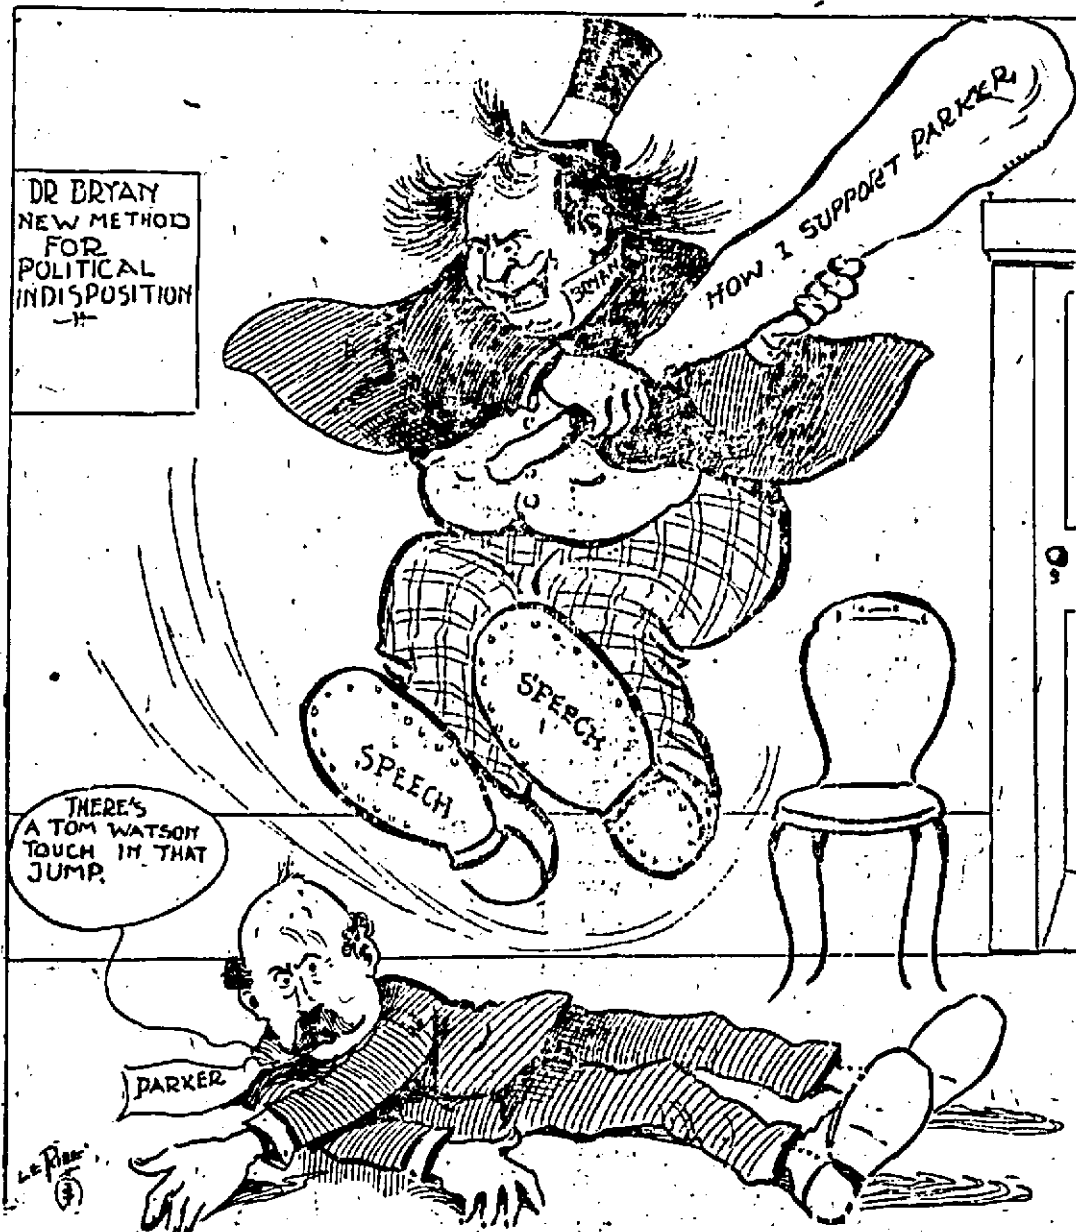

The continued silence of the foreign office is taken to indicate that the gravity of the situation is steadily increasing. It is realized both in England and in every capital in Europe that England and Russia are involved in the most complicated and dangerous diplomatic crisis in recent history. The most astute diplomats cannot see an immediate peaceful solution of the dispute.

While up to the present time the government has maintained an almost complete silence with regard to the progress of the affair, it is considered almost certain that Premier Balfour, who will make a speech at Portsmouth to-night, will, after a conference with the entire cabinet, be in a position to make some definite announcement.

Tension Is Great. Public sentiment, which hitherto has been kept under remarkable restraint, will hardly stand the passing of another day, and especially because of the opportunity afforded by Mr. Balfour's appearance on the platform, unless some satisfactory explanation is made.

It might be said that yesterday was the first time that any real excitement was exhibited on the part of the public. Early editions of the afternoon papers, calculated to arouse the most intense national feeling, positively announced that a time limit had been set for Russia's reply and that the cabinet had been called to assemble immediately. This brought out a crowd in Downing street, but it quickly dispersed when informed that Mr. Balfour had not arrived from Hatfield house, and that they were twenty-four hours ahead of time.

Fishermen Make Denial. At Hull, where the simplicity of the funeral rites over the bodies of the victims was in strong contrast to the deep feeling displayed by the enormous concourse of public mourners, Admiral Rojestvensky's statements are discredited as absolutely inaccurate and unworthy of the slightest consideration. The fishermen are emphatic in declaring that it can be proved beyond doubt that there were no Japanese torpedo boats in the vicinity of Doggers bank. Further, they point out that the Baltic squadron was thirty miles out of its proper course, with the result that the vessels steamed into the midst of the trawlers, and this is the only foundation, they assert, for the allegation that the transport Anatos was surrounded by unknown vessels.

Dr. Bryan—I assure you that this course of treatment may be a little eccentric, but I have my reasons for it.

UNIVERSITY PROF. WEDS IN MISSOURI

Ernest Karl Johann Hkinrick Voss Takes Miss Aurie Vall Hedrick Before Marriage Altar.

[Special to The Gazette.] Madison, Wis., Oct. 28.—Dr. Ernest Karl Johann Hkinrick Voss, head of the German department of the University of Wisconsin, was married yesterday to Miss Aurie Vall Hedrick at Columbia, Missouri. The bride was formerly a school teacher at Oak Park, Ill.

ANOTHER FIGHT AT PORT ARTHUR

Japanese Said to Have Made Another Assault Upon the Russian Stronghold.

[Special by Scripps-McLain.] Tokyo, Oct. 28.—It is reported the Japanese made a desperate assault on the eastern forts of the Kekwan group on Oct. 26th, and silenced the Russian batteries. The Russian batteries on Philung mountain and Sung Hohowain were also silenced and the forts in front of these mountains occupied. A shell exploded in a Russian magazine. That night there was a fire in Port Arthur and the following day a shell struck the battleship Sevastopol and two Russian steamers were sunk.

STATE NOTES

John A. Mitchell's large barn, machine shop and icehouse were destroyed by fire near Chippewa Falls on Thursday.

Racine county has broken its cabbage and onion record, having shipped 1,500 carloads of cabbage and ninety carloads of onions.

William O'Laughlin's arm was broken in two places in the flywheel of a gasoline engine at Eldorado Thursday night, and amputation may be necessary.

Burglars damaged the study and other rooms of the First M. E. church at Racine. Desks were broken open, and books thrown about, but nothing was carried away.

Racine trade unionists are alarmed over the rumors being made in their ranks of the new Citizens' alliance, and have been warned by J. J. Hanley and Ald. Welch of Milwaukee to wake to action or they may fall.

The $24,000 four per cent waterworks bonds have been sold to N. W. Harris & Co. of Chicago. The $3,000 three and a half per cent waterworks bonds were sold to J. M. Paige of this city.

It is stated that Bishop Fox of Green Bay has decided on the appointment of either Father Fitzmaurice or Appleton of Father Clifford of Portage as the successor of the late Father O'Malley of St. Peter's church.

According to L. H. Mann, assistant United States engineer, navigation on the Fox river will probably close Nov. 15.

The two story steel bridges across Little River east of Coleman, are now completed.

Appendicitis Is Contagious. According to M. Champlonnere, in a paper read before the French Academy of Medicine, appendicitis is infectious, and may arise from influenza. It is commonest in countries where much flesh is eaten, and is graver in patients who eat much flesh.

CONCERT HALL FIRE IS FATAL

Firemen Are Compelled to Be Harsh With Excited Hotel Guests, Who Cling to Them When They Endeavor to Clear the Building.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—Shrieking with fright at the thought of being unable to reach the street, a score of hysterical women and men fought madly with each other in a burning concert hall in the rear of M. S. Fower's saloon at 145 West Madison street.

The mad stampede for the exits by the performers and audience resulted in one man being knocked to the floor, where he was burned to death; another was badly burned about the head and body, and it was only by the heroic efforts of Fire Marshal Campton and a company of firemen that this man was rescued from the burning building.

Carries Brother to Morgue. The man who perished was Dennis Hogan, 33 years old, an employee of Armour & Co. at the stock yards. The identification of the body was made two hours later at the morgue by Frank Hogan, a patrol driver at the Desplaines street police station. The brother was unaware that it was his relative's body which he was removing to the morgue because of some letters bearing the name of H. L. Schroeder being found in the pockets.

The flames in the concert hall also caused a panic among the guests of the Coney Island hotel, which occupied the second floor. The flames and smoke poured through the air shaft and, coming up in the kitchen, caused the guests to flee to the street in panic-stricken.

Leap From Windows. Several, believing that their way had been cut off at the front stairs, leaped out of the windows into the street, but escaped being injured. The bravery of the firemen probably saved many of the guests from receiving severe injuries. It was during the thickest of the excitement that the firemen fought their way through the mass of terrified guests and carried down many who had been knocked to the floor in the stampede.

The women clung to the firemen and refused at first to go down stairs unless they were carried. The firemen on several occasions had to push the women down the stairway.

The flames, which started from some unknown cause in a dressing room, had crept to the ceiling before they were discovered. Without warning they shot into view, and instantly there was the wildest commotion among the performers and the small audience.

Stampede for Exits. The orchestra stopped playing and the stampede for the two exits followed. The frantic people knocked down the employees who sought to check their mad flight, and when the room became filled with the stifling smoke the struggling men and women uttered shriek after shriek.

The excited people on reaching the street fell exhausted, where they were assisted to near-by stores.

The dead body of Hogan was not discovered until after Marshal Campton and his men had carried out Morris Burns, who had fallen unconscious near the stage door.

Hogan's body lay between some palm trees, his feet only being visible.

MILLION DOLLAR FIRE--MANY HURT

New York Suffers From a Serious Conflagration--One Man Killed.

[Special by Scripps-McLain.] New York, Oct. 28.—One man is dead, one severely injured and several missing and a million dollars' worth of property was destroyed early this morning by a fire which burned four steamships and several pier warehouses of the Bush Terminal Co.'s stores in South Brooklyn.

FAIRBANKS MAKES MANY SPEECHES

Vice Presidential Candidate is to Journey Through Missouri Today.

[Special by Scripps-McLain.] Springfield, Mo., Oct. 28.—Fairbanks began a series of thirteen speeches scheduled for today by addressing a crowd at Monett. He will arrive at St. Louis tonight on his way to Cincinnati, where he speaks tomorrow night.

SPARKS FROM THE WIRES

The Colorado Fuel and Iron company rejected its old officers. A treaty of extradition has been concluded between Belgium and Cuba.

Alexander Kiss, a one-armed, one-legged and one-eyed Hungarian, was hanged at Newton, N. J., for the murder of his wife.

Albert Dabrydino, an Italian, was hanged at Pittsburgh, Pa., for the murder of his sweetheart, Mary Muceniska, May 28, 1903.

The second fire within four months practically destroyed the business section of Redfield, Ill., twenty miles west of Kankakee.

The large cannery owned by the American Milk Products company at Garden Prairie, near Sterling, Ill., was totally destroyed by fire, loss, $15,000.

The leaders of the moderate party and the Havana newspapers have renewed the pressure upon President Palma to indicate to which party he belongs.

The sale of the capital stock of the seven subsidiary companies of the United States Ship-building company has been postponed until next Monday.

Why Czarewitsch Is Alexis. It has been a tradition since the time of Nicholas I to name the czarewitsches alternately Alexander and Nicholas. But the murder of Alexander II caused his name to be considered unlucky, so there will be no more Alexanders on the Russian throne, as there will be no more Pauls or Peters.

The czarewitsch was therefore named Alexis, after the father of Peter the Great.

Cook's Perquisites. A restaurant cook arrested for stealing provisions in London, was found to have "concealed on his person" three apples, a shoulder of mutton, a pound of butter, a pound of sausages, half a pound of jam and a package of cocoa.

MRS. KRAUSS IS GUILTY PERSON

Confesses That She Gave Poison to Her Step-daughter, But Denies Motive.

HUSBAND AIDED IN PROSECUTION

Paid Daily Visits to His Erring Wife, and Finally Secured the Confession of Her Crime-- Sent to Prison.

Hartford City, Ind., Oct. 28.—After many weeks of stout denial in the face of almost absolute proof, Mrs. Rae Krauss Thursday confessed in court here that she administered strychnine that killed her stepdaughter, Crystal Krauss, who died in convulsions Aug. 2. The confession was a surprise even to the woman's lawyer. After the admission, the woman was sentenced to prison for life and was taken at once to the women's prison in Indianapolis. A mob at the station hissed Mrs. Krauss and uttered threatening cries as she boarded a train for prison.

It came out that the confession was drawn from the woman by her husband, who, with that idea in view, visited her every day in jail. He was instructed in his actions by States Attorney Burns.

Woman Admits Her Guilt. An indictment was returned Thursday and the trial was begun at once, in accordance with the prisoner's demand. Late in the afternoon a jury was secured, and when the usual question as to guilt or innocence was put, Mrs. Krauss replied, calmly, "Guilty."

The word startled the court room, as a fight had been expected and the defendant's attorney had consulted with her up to the opening of court as to her defense. At the dramatic moment Mrs. Krauss produced a paper and handed it to Judge Vaughn. It was her confession, written on Oct. 16, the date, it was found, that she had confessed to her husband. Then she quietly took her seat and listened while the judge read the statement. The jury was charged, and reported. Then Mrs. Krauss, overruling her attorney, insisted on immediate sentence and received it.

Slayer Acts on Impulse. In the confession there were no details concerning the tragedy itself, but since the woman has cleared up the matter it is evident that the state's case was without a flaw. The motive had been regarded as jealousy of the girl's popularity or covetousness of Crystal's prospective fortune, but in the confession a definite motive is disclosed.

Crystal was 18 years old, and her stepmother, who was married to W. R. Krauss, a prominent druggist here, only two months before the murder, is 27. Both women were active in church affairs. Krauss intended to leave his fortune of about $20,000 to his daughter. Crystal and her stepmother appeared to be on the best of terms and, often went out together in the same set.

The girl died suddenly, after a meal. Mrs. Krauss advanced the suicide theory, recalling that Crystal's father had forbidden her to receive the attentions of James Cronin, a young newspaper man, who is the "boy" referred to in the confession.

Attempts Suicide in Jail. The bed on which the girl had died was searched thoroughly by the doctors, who found nothing. Mrs. Krauss, however, produced a bottle and two notes indicating suicide. She said she found them on the bed. These, it was charged, and "now it appears truthfully," were written by the stepmother.

Because of the convulsions the physicians refused to sign a death certificate, and a coroner's jury called the case one of suicide. When suspicion began to point strongly toward the older woman a chemical examination of the contents of the dead girl's stomach showed she had been killed with strychnine. Soon it was found that Mrs. Krauss had sent a boy to a drug store to purchase strychnine for her.

Mrs. Krauss admitted that she had twice attempted suicide in jail.

HARVESTS LARGE CROP OF TUBERS

L. Boss of Milton Junction, Secures Twenty Bushel From One of Seed.

In the Gazette of Oct. 22 a record-breaking yield of immense potatoes was recorded; now Lou Boss, of Milton Junction upon the harvest of his crop finds that though his tubers are not so large, they have yielded more for the amount of seed. The yield was twenty-five bushels from one of seed. Last spring Mr. Boss secured three pounds of potatoes of the "Gold Coin" variety and has harvested from this fall three bushels, all fine tubers of excellent quality. Thirty bushels of seedlings have been raised from fifty pounds of potatoes. The seedlings were uniform in size and free from any blight or rot. This is the third year that the same success has come.

DANE COUNTY TO HAVE A FACTORY

Large Number of Acres of Sugar Beets Warrants the Building— Less Tobacco Was Grown.

[Special to The Gazette.] Madison, Wis., Oct. 28.—A large number of farmers of southwestern Wisconsin have grown quite an extensive acreage of sugar beets this year. The crop was very successful.

Farmers in Dane county have raised considerable less tobacco this summer than in other years and used the lands for beets. Fifteen carloads of beets were shipped from Darwin, a little station north of Madison, to a beet sugar factory at Monmouth Falls. A factory will be erected in Madison within the next few years if the greater percentage of farmers in Dane county can be induced to grow beets.

A Refined Compliment. At the instant Queen Elizabeth of England alighted at Kenilworth, on a visit to Leicester, all the clocks in the castle were stopped, and by a delicate attention the hands continued to point toward the moment of her arrival, since no one was to take note of time during the royal sojourn there.

Knee Breeches Coming Fad. As King Edward has cast his royal eye with favor on the revival of knee breeches, stockings and pumps for men's evening wear, and as the latter part of this month has been set for the appearance of a party at a dinner in the Carlton house, London, garbed in the days of the Georges, the imitative set in New York is in a flutter. Nothing will do but that this costume shall be adopted immediately. The women, without stopping to think how unbecoming "short clothes" would be to many pairs of metropolitan shanks, are more clamorous for no innovation than the men. It is not purposed to appear in silken breeches and stockinged legs on special occasions only, but every evening after dinner, whether in the home at a theater, in the street or at a late supper.

WISCONSIN READY FOR THE BIG GAME

STUDENTS ARE WORKED TO A PITCH OF EXCITEMENT.

MASS MEETING LAST EVENING

Students Do Not Think They Can Beat Michigan, But Hope to Score at Least.

Madison, Wis.—We will defeat Michigan if we can, and I believe we can. I will not predict the score. Statement of Head Coach Arthur H. Curtis of Wisconsin.

Michigan outwits us, but that will not count for much. The field is fast and Wisconsin is fast. The only thing that will defeat us is the possibility that our men are not able to last. Statement of Assistant Coach E. U. Cochems.

Our men are all in the best of physical condition. Statement by Trainer M. O'Dea.

This is the way the makers of the Badger university football team size up the prospect for the contest with the Yost scoring machine on Camp Randall tomorrow. Coach Curtis' statement sounds the most modest of the three, but those who know us as characteristic conservatism will know that he has never made such an out-and-out prediction of victory on the eve of a great championship contest.

There is a suggestion abroad, and it is limited at in the statement of Assistant Coach Cochems, that the Badgers are not in physical condition to withstand the rushes of the ponderous Wolverine line for two halves of thirty-five minutes each. Color is given to this by the fact that the work of the Wisconsin regulars has been light during the last three days, as if to keep the men from going "state," that is being overtrained and tired out when the time for the supreme test of endurance comes.

However, the statement of the trainer is to the effect that the men are all in the best of condition, would seem to put at rest this fear of inadequate physical condition. It is certain that Wisconsin has not any players on the hospital list or any laid up on their playing value impaired by reason of injuries. This situation is almost unique in football history here, it being usually the case that some men are not in the best of shape because of bruises, strained tendons or "Charlie horses."

This game is the sixth played between the universities of Wisconsin and Michigan. These were in the years 1892, 1894, 1899, 1902 and 1903. Wisconsin has defeated Michigan twice and has been defeated three times of the five. The Badgers have scored a total of 61 points on the Wolverines and the Michigan men have made 55 points against Wisconsin.

During the present season Michigan has played more games than Wisconsin and also made a much larger total of points against her opponents. Wisconsin has not been scored upon and has made an aggregate of 221 points. Michigan's goal line has been reached for six points, but the team has rolled up a total of 407 against her opponents.

Michigan has the advantage over the Badgers in respect to weight, her team weighing 2,047 pounds against the Badgers 1,972. The average weight of Wisconsin is 179 1-11, while that of the Wolverines is 180 1-11. It is believed that Wisconsin's backs are faster than those of Michigan and in this belief lies the reason for the great hope that fills the hearts of the cardinal rooters.

The betting at Madison is somewhat more vigorous as the game draws nearer, but the quantity is still very much smaller than usually on such occasions. The odds are strong in favor of Michigan's winning, being usually two to one or three to two. Some demands are made by Michigan money for even prices, but there are no takers for this.

The great gridiron is encircled, as an amphitheater of stadium, with high seat stands and bleachers and latest estimates fix the crowd at 11,000 spectators.

Work Complete. Coach Curtis has completed, so far as hard work is concerned, the preparation of his Badger eleven for the championship contest with the Wolverines here Saturday. Light work on the field will be done today and with the signal drill in the gymnasium in the evening the men will await the referee's whistle. "Bob" Wrenn and Darby will umpire and referee and Leut. Hackett, of Fort Sheridan will be head linesman. The attendance will be anywhere from 10,000 to 14,000.

With the close of the strenuous part of the preparation there is still some doubt regarding three of the places on the Wisconsin team. Fleischer, 192 pounds, the best punter of the squad, has a good show to be sent in at left guard, in Donovan's place, for it is recognized that all the advantage possible must be gained in the kicking department. Schneider has made a great showing in the last game and in the practice this week at fullback and as he weighs more than Clark it is thought he may start in the game. Kinney, Brindley and Perry have been racing close for right tackle. Brindley and Perry seem to have the best of Kinney in the matter of agility and quick judgment, but Kinney is much more speedy than either and also has more weight, 193 pounds. His experience in vastly football, however, began with the present year, while Brindley has played on the second eleven for two seasons prior to the present and Perry was the regular fullback in some of the big games last year. The lineup of Wisconsin will be: Findlay, left end; Burke, left tackle; Donovan, center; Fleischer, left guard; Kemp, center; Strongquist, right guard; Brindley, Kinney, Perry, right tackle; Captain Bush, right end; George Jones, quarterback and field general; Vanderboom, left halfback; Wrabetz, right halfback; Clark or Schneider, fullback. Brindley, Donovan and Clark seem to have the preference, choices are yet to be made.

While there is no gloom whatever in the Wisconsin university community, there is not general optimism. Students generally say they expect Wisconsin to fight the battle of the gridiron on equal terms, against odds, and win. No predictions as to score, however, are ventured by these students. Down town, away from the immediate vicinity of the trailing quarters, where it is to be presumed that loyal enthusiasm and hope do not over-influence judgment, the score of 17 to 6, in favor of Michigan, is frequently heard. Three touchdowns to one seems to be the established guess.

As the time for the contest becomes nearer there is observed to be an unusually small amount of betting on the outcome. This may be partly due to the efforts of President Van Hise to discourage what he considers a "violent incident to great intercollegiate athletic contests." More wagers will be posted Saturday morning before the game, but this feature will assuredly not be as large as might be expected. Probably the most important reason for this is the wonderfully pleasant feeling existing between Michigan and Wisconsin, and perhaps conservative judgment on the part of Wisconsin rooters, that leads them to refrain from risking their legal tender on the chances the Badgers have of winning against Yost's scoring machine.

The gridiron has been carefully attended to and will be in the best of condition for the game. Wisconsin has used it only in the regular game, using the new practice field for the daily work.

J. SUTHERLAND IS VICE PRESIDENT

Elected to Office in State Historical Society—Rev. Huey Elected Annual Member.

The State Historical society of Wisconsin held its 52d annual meeting in Madison yesterday. Officers were elected as follows: President, William W. Wright of Milwaukee; vice presidents, Chief Justice John P. Cassoday of Madison, Lucius C. Colman of La Crosse, Emil Baensch of Manitowish, James Sutherland of Janesville, Col. William F. Vilas of Madison, and John Luchinsinger of Monroe; treasurer, L. S. Hanks of Madison. Secretary Dr. Reuben G. Hawalis of Madison reported that of the private funds of the society, all of which are loaned out on real estate mortgages, the building of fund contains $27,892.60; the anti-squatter fund, $6,125.68; the Draper fund, $214.90, and the Mary N. Draper fund, $4,614.61. The state makes annual appropriations to the society of $20,000. Rev. S. G. Huey was elected an annual member.

WHY APPENDICITIS? Why is appendicitis so common today? Because we have got into the pernicious habit of eating too fast.

Dr. Curtis, the great authority on this disease, says: "Appendicitis is often follows the eating of a very heavy, or particularly large or indigestible meal."

After carelessly following a foolish custom, you can ensure your safety by taking Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which is an accepted, scientific truth, which admits of no dispute, that if you will only keep your digestive apparatus in good order, you will never suffer from this dread disease, which, at best, means a weakening operation, with long weeks wasted in bed, and big doctor's and surgeon's bills to pay as souvenirs.

Keep your appendix in health by the proper use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, whenever you have laid yourself open to danger by overeating, and upon the least sign of stomach or intestinal trouble, for other-wise, at any time, this dangerous disease may lay you low.

The curative influence of this great medicine is quickly shown in the gentle soothing effect it has on all inflamed conditions of any part of the digestive tract.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets tone all these parts up to a proper condition of perfect health, and regulate their functions into a proper working state.

They also make away with all the causes of irritation, inflammation or indigestion, by helping to dissolve, digest and assimilate, or put to proper use, all the food which is lying around in odd corners of your digestive apparatus, fermenting, rotting and producing, like so much garbage, in a dirty sink.

In these natural and perfectly simple ways, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets restore all sufferers, from any form of dyspeptic trouble, to health.

They are safe, and reliable. They never fail to relieve and cure, quickly and permanently.

Use them, and you need never worry about your appendix nevermore.

JEFFRIS THROWS BIG BOMB SHELL

FOLLOWS GOVERNOR TO NEENAH ON THURSDAY AFTERNOON.

A RED HOT CAMPAIGN MADE

Also Spoke at Oconto—Had Largest Audience of the Year—Governor Cancels Dates.

Governor La Follette has cancelled all his engagements in Rock county except his speeches at Janesville Monday night and Beloit Tuesday night. Rather, the dates were cancelled for him by his right hand men—Dr. Roberts, state veterinarian, and Charles Conrad, oil inspector of the county. The announcement must be a disappointment to the La Follette men of that county as they had been led to hope the governor and his "red devil" would inject new hope in their bosoms and help them stem the tide which is sweeping up against their dikes. It is probable that this decision was reached when the committee in charge realized that the farmers were too busy with their sugar beet crops to attend an afternoon meeting, even to hear the governor expound his reasons why this state is going to ruin and perdition unless he is reelected.

Hot Shots. The governor was given a taste of hot shot at Neenah yesterday. From early morning until late at night this city was filled with politicians. First came the governor and following him a whirlwind came M. G. Jeffris and then came Congressman Esch.

The coming of Jeffris was a surprise and was arranged after the Oshkosh meeting, when, at the suggestion of many Twin City republicans, he consented to speak, following La Follette, who was advertised for a forenoon meeting. Although the governor finished his address some time before 11 o'clock, those in charge of the opera house refused to rent it until 11:30. No advertisement of the Jeffris meeting was made until late in the forenoon, but he was greeted by a larger audience of voters than welcomed Gov. La Follette. The mill men of the two cities closed down their works in order to give all an opportunity of hearing both speakers, and Mr. Jeffris held the attention of his audience until long past the dinner hour.

Sought to Attract the Democrats. The occasion was not lacking in dramatic force, although no conflict resulted from what some of the administration men said was a usurpation of their meeting. In his speech, the governor confined himself exclusively to the discussion of matters that would appeal to democratic voters there, as elsewhere in his more recent speeches, he abstained from his usual denunciation of all who disagree with him.

Before Mr. Jeffris had talked long a few of the partisans of Gov. La Follette sought to interrupt his remarks by hissing some of his references to La Follette. They only made one attempt, for the sentiment of the audience clearly indicated how the voters of the two cities felt toward conduct of that nature. The speaker fearlessly as well as fairly discussed the issues for which the regular republicans of Wisconsin contend and reviewed the entire gamut of La Follette's ideas.

He discussed at some length the application, practically, of La Follette's ideas of an apportioned railroad rate commission upon the industries of Neenah and Menasha, and asserted that it was solely because of the fact that the paper mills were given a commodity rate on pulp wood that these industries continued to exist. Without that rate the mills would be obliged to locate nearer the supply of material used in the manufacture of paper, and the industry, so far as any local benefit is concerned, would be destroyed.

Tells of the Prudential Life Case. Mr. Jeffris took up the statements made by La Follette in many of his speeches throughout the state, and told the facts about his administration, citing specific facts to prove his assertions. He told specifically of the Prudential Life Insurance company being obliged to contribute to Insurance Commissioner Host, and called the attention of the policyholders to the way in which this money was spent, claiming that a part at least had been turned into La Follette's campaign fund.

The speaker was given an enthusiastic reception, and, following immediately after Gov. La Follette had concluded, the effect of his visit, it is claimed by those familiar with the situation, will be to awaken republicans to the duty of the situation. Hundreds of employees as well as many of the business and professional men of the city are in his audience and his remarks were frequently interrupted by hearty applause.

After the meeting feeling was shown by a few of the more ardent La Follette men of the city. Considering the fact that nothing was known of the Jeffris meeting until late yesterday afternoon, the meeting was a decided success, and will have an important effect on the two cities.

The Oconto Meeting. Then came the Oconto meeting. A large number came from Gillett, Oconto Falls, Sobieski, and other neighboring villages, and many were unable to gain admittance to the hall. Judge D. G. Classon presided and seated upon the stage were many republicans who have for years been the backbone of their party in northern Wisconsin. Among them were former Gov. Scofield, O. A. Ellis, Col. W. H. Young, W. A. Holt, Peter Shultz, Dr. Oliver, and J. J. Hof of Sobieski.

Mr. Jeffris spoke of the division of the republican state convention of Madison last May, and the causes leading up to it. He dwelt at considerable length on the different contests and when it came to the Oconto county contest, his audience gave vent to its disapproval of the methods employed by the La Follette state central committee in unseating the legally elected eleven republican delegates and giving their places to eleven La Follette supporters.

"When I saw that the Oconto county delegation was to be thrown out of the convention I decided to go with them," he said.

He recited the proceedings in organizing the Fuller opera-house convention. He declared that Gov. La Follette had made up a program of the convention consisting of thirty-two typewritten pages, including every motion to be made and even to the names of the men appointed to make them. Assistant Attorney General Bancroft, he said, happened to be out at the time he was to make a certain motion, and had to be sent for to carry out his part of the program before the convention could proceed with the business.

A governor of a state who will steal a convention," he said, "will violate any law if it comes in his way."

He said that it is costing from $300,000 to $500,000 more to run the state since La Follette became governor than it did before. He declared that he favored the primary election principle, but showed that the proposed La Follette law was a vicious measure. He asserted that under former Governor Scofield the affairs of the state were conducted for $100 a day less than under La Follette, and gave Scofield credit for having given the state two good, wise, economical business administrations. The whole state, he said, "honors him and Oconto county state by repudiating La Follette, who is neither a democrat nor a republican, but a populist. The only real republican candidate for governor is Edward Scofield and his name was placed upon the ticket by the only real republican state central committee in Wisconsin."

He spoke of the action brought by the governor against the six railway companies last Friday, and said that as they had twenty days in which to file their answers, no action could be taken until after election, which he took to convince the people of the state that he had acted purely for political effect. He went after the "political cowards," who were afraid to stand by their principles in this contest in most scathing terms, and called the attention of his audience to the fact that no financial statement had been made this year by the state administration, although it has been due since last June.

"And," he added, "We won't get one either, until after election."

Stanley Tallman and Dr. Fifield Fifield Are Enamored of Glistening Paris.

Writing from Paris on October 13, Stanley Tallman states that he and Dr. Fifield have been in the gay metropolis for one week and that both agree that its charm eclipses Berlin or any other city they have visited or ever expect to visit on this earth. They came to Paris from Cologne after a trip down the Rhine and were to leave for Brussels on the following day. After that, Amsterdam, London, and the voyage home. While the writer speaks in glowing terms of the Louvre and Luxembourg galleries and the night tours of the Bohemian Latin quarter with its cafes and cabarets and giddy and gorgeous dance halls—the Moulin Rouge and the Folies Bergeres—were also interesting.

WHITEHEAD HAD A LARGE MEETING

The Senator Spoke to an Interesting Gathering at Footville Last Evening.

Senator Whitehead spoke at Footville last evening to an audience of over two hundred. During the address two La Follette supporters who tried to break up the Center meeting entered the hall and Senator Whitehead asked them to take two vacant chairs in the front of the room, which they did. They made no disturbance during the meeting. Next week Senator Whitehead has a busy schedule. Wednesday he speaks at Evansville, Thursday at Milton Junction, Friday at Clinton, Saturday at Janesville and Monday at Beloit.

FOLLOWS GOVERNOR TO NEENAH ON THURSDAY AFTERNOON.

A RED HOT CAMPAIGN MADE

Also Spoke at Oconto—Had Largest Audience of the Year—Governor Cancels Dates.

Governor La Follette has cancelled all his engagements in Rock county except his speeches at Janesville Monday night and Beloit Tuesday night. Rather, the dates were cancelled for him by his right hand men—Dr. Roberts, state veterinarian, and Charles Conrad, oil inspector of the county. The announcement must be a disappointment to the La Follette men of that county as they had been led to hope the governor and his "red devil" would inject new hope in their bosoms and help them stem the tide which is sweeping up against their dikes. It is probable that this decision was reached when the committee in charge realized that the farmers were too busy with their sugar beet crops to attend an afternoon meeting, even to hear the governor expound his reasons why this state is going to ruin and perdition unless he is reelected.

Hot Shots. The governor was given a taste of hot shot at Neenah yesterday. From early morning until late at night this city was filled with politicians. First came the governor and following him a whirlwind came M. G. Jeffris and then came Congressman Esch.

The coming of Jeffris was a surprise and was arranged after the Oshkosh meeting, when, at the suggestion of many Twin City republicans, he consented to speak, following La Follette, who was advertised for a forenoon meeting. Although the governor finished his address some time before 11 o'clock, those in charge of the opera house refused to rent it until 11:30. No advertisement of the Jeffris meeting was made until late in the forenoon, but he was greeted by a larger audience of voters than welcomed Gov. La Follette. The mill men of the two cities closed down their works in order to give all an opportunity of hearing both speakers, and Mr. Jeffris held the attention of his audience until long past the dinner hour.

Sought to Attract the Democrats. The occasion was not lacking in dramatic force, although no conflict resulted from what some of the administration men said was a usurpation of their meeting. In his speech, the governor confined himself exclusively to the discussion of matters that would appeal to democratic voters there, as elsewhere in his more recent speeches, he abstained from his usual denunciation of all who disagree with him.

Before Mr. Jeffris had talked long a few of the partisans of Gov. La Follette sought to interrupt his remarks by hissing some of his references to La Follette. They only made one attempt, for the sentiment of the audience clearly indicated how the voters of the two cities felt toward conduct of that nature. The speaker fearlessly as well as fairly discussed the issues for which the regular republicans of Wisconsin contend and reviewed the entire gamut of La Follette's ideas.

He discussed at some length the application, practically, of La Follette's ideas of an apportioned railroad rate commission upon the industries of Neenah and Menasha, and asserted that it was solely because of the fact that the paper mills were given a commodity rate on pulp wood that these industries continued to exist. Without that rate the mills would be obliged to locate nearer the supply of material used in the manufacture of paper, and the industry, so far as any local benefit is concerned, would be destroyed.

Tells of the Prudential Life Case. Mr. Jeffris took up the statements made by La Follette in many of his speeches throughout the state, and told the facts about his administration, citing specific facts to prove his assertions. He told specifically of the Prudential Life Insurance company being obliged to contribute to Insurance Commissioner Host, and called the attention of the policyholders to the way in which this money was spent, claiming that a part at least had been turned into La Follette's campaign fund.

The speaker was given an enthusiastic reception, and, following immediately after Gov. La Follette had concluded, the effect of his visit, it is claimed by those familiar with the situation, will be to awaken republicans to the duty of the situation. Hundreds of employees as well as many of the business and professional men of the city are in his audience and his remarks were frequently interrupted by hearty applause.

THE QUESTION.

To the Editor: I write hoping you will find time to answer and enlighten me as to how I should vote this coming election. It will be my first vote for president, and I value it next to my life, for it means either a full or empty dinner pail for me. I have tried to find some sound conviction by reading the daily journals, but apparently they are striving to see which one can lie most sordidly in their criticism of party and candidate, therefore, I appeal to you for some sound reasons why I should vote the republican ticket, and wish to add that with all my strength and mind I endorse your president in maintaining the army and navy and the progressive government we have enjoyed for the past eight years. Hoping the best candidate will win, I remain, Sincerely, J. L. C.

Your favor of recent date, stating that at the coming election you will cast your first presidential vote, and asking for some good reasons why you should vote the republican ticket, has been referred to me for answer.

The reasons are many and strong why you should "start right" by voting the republican ticket, yet it is impossible, within the limits of an ordinary letter, to state even briefly all of them. Here are a few of them:

First: You should vote the republican ticket, because the record of that party for the fifty years of its existence has been so uniformly honorable and consistent that it is today a crown of glory to every man to say that he was one of its founders, and has continued to act with it to this day. It is a privilege to any young man to come into such an inheritance. No other party has existed in our country for that length of time, but its honorable members have at some time or other been obliged to admit that its principles were vicious and its candidates unworthy of their support.

Second: You should vote the republican ticket because that party was organized to make this the land of free men, free soil and free speech. Having accomplished its purpose, it is the party best fitted to preserve them.

Third: You should vote the republican ticket because the party is opposed to free trade and free silver, and has consistently stood for protection to both labor and capital.

Fourth: You should vote the republican ticket, because a man is known by the company he keeps, and no man is in bad company who is a member of the party of Fremont and Lincoln and Grant and McKinley and Roosevelt. All good men are not republicans, nor are all republicans good men; but the vast majority of republicans are men of good repute. Look about in your own community and see whether this is not true.

Fifth: You should vote the republican ticket because its candidates now, as in the past, are honest, able and courageous men. As has been said, what more could any mother and father ask than that their son should follow the same high ideals as Theodore Roosevelt has followed, and live the same honorable, loyal, pure life as his has been.

Sixth: You should vote the republican ticket because that party is distinctly the young man's party, for its future offers so much of promise for the upbuilding of the honor and glory of our country. If you wish to take part in this work, if you like to be doing things, if you are progressive, if you are ambitious for your own betterment and that of your native land, if you wish the world to be better for your having lived, then you should line up with the republican party. If, on the other hand, you are always looking backward, always carping at what others do, and afraid of the future, and fearful that our country may become too great, then there is no place in the republican party for you.

Vote for Roosevelt, Whitehead, Norcross and every republican, and then, on election night, when the returns are announced, you can throw up your hat and say "I helped win the day."

Now comes talk that the democrats headed by Bryan and Taggart and Harrison are going to bolt the democratic party, and have a new party all of their own.

The poor democratic donkey is staggering along with a gigantic burden—Parker and his bag of brains and Uncle Gassaway and his empty pocket book.

Janesville has paid fitting tribute to the departed. Never has any city in the state more sincerely mourned than has Janesville the death of John Hogan.

We must not lose sight of the every day fights over in Japan merely because there are a few political speeches.

Governor La Follette wants it understood he is mightier than a petty congressman who wants to speak at the same time he does.

Do not forget that M. G. Jeffris will wind up the campaign in Janesville on November 7th. It will be a stem winder, too.

Ex-Governor Scofield has not forgotten every political trick he knew. He has a few cards up his sleeve yet.

If Bryan wants his party a success he should invite La Follette and Debs to come and join him.

There is the promise of a warm wave for Rock county next week Monday and Tuesday.

Just count the days from now until election.

This campaign has been a long and exhaustive one. From May until November.

Senator Whitehead continues to go quietly about the county winning votes and making friends that will count.

Odds on the governor have dropped, according to a Milwaukee paper.

Governor Peck is talking to "boys." Not "Bad Boys" these days.

Marquette, Uncle Ike's village, will have some hot times before long.

There is no let up on the purses of the great trusts according to the democratic press.

Who is stealing those trust chickens, anyway?

The red "devil wagon" will not be seen here.

PRESS COMMENT.

Racine Journal: Next year as usual William Jennings Bryan will be crowding down Chautauque audiences his twaddle about high ideals.

Grant County Herald: It will be to the everlasting disgrace of Grant county of Babcock does not receive a large and overwhelming majority.

Chicago Tribune: Upon the whole, a subway is safer. An elevated train may fall down, but you never heard of a subway train falling up.

Ashland Press: A Massachusetts man has abandoned the ministry for the stage. This is preferable to turning the pulpit into a stage, as some have done.

Racine News: An absolutely sure cure for the drink habit has been found. It is wood alcohol. One dose will prevent a man from ever touching whiskey again.

El Paso Herald: Dick Canfield, who runs the finest gambling house in America, is buying the best paintings at St. Louis. Kitty pays the bills.

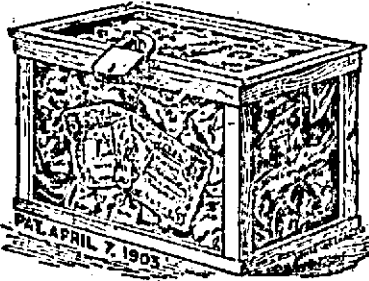

Madison Journal: Governor La Follette has begun his suit against the railroads, and thus has already started a reason for claiming a fourth term if elected for a third one. It will be the same of claim that his work is not finished.

La Crosse Chronicle: Bourke Cockran passionately asks, "What shall we do with the men who have burdens greater than they can carry?" As a beginning Mr. Cockran might get off Judge Parker's back.

El Paso Herald: Of all the shameless pleas made in American courts since Adam and Eve hooked apples in the Rio Grande valley, that of the life-preserver men pleading guilty of loading down their manufactures with bar iron but denouncing the indictment on the ground that they did not intend or damage the general government, merely the public, seems about as barefaced as any.

Superior Telegram: The argument that it would be better to have our manufacturing done in the old country so as to get even with the American trusts would be pretty good if it were not lacking in several particulars. It lacks reason, common sense, practicability, logic, the motive of self-preservation, statesmanship and the possibility of prosperity. It shines, however, in support of the policy of cutting off your nose to spite your face.

American Custom Praised.
"The prettiest sight imaginable, and one I have never seen outside the United States, is the promenade of your beautiful girls and young women on the streets of evenings, when they appear without any sort of head covering," said Samuel Golley of London. "To my mind this is one of the neatest, most picturesque and fascinating customs that ever the fair sex adopted, and it seems to have reached the acme of its development right here in your capital. In their spotless white garments and without hats or bonnets, the quiteness of feminine charm is revealed. Though I have been all over the civilized world, I never saw the practice till I came to America."

Insect Migration.
There are many insects that migrate from one quarter of the globe to another by means of the vessels which ply between distant ports. Indeed, the spread of nearly all kinds of living creatures has been dependent on the ships of civilized nations. Winged pests and blessings have been readily carried to new countries by this means.

Nominee Long in Politics.

Edward Casper Stokes, the Republican nominee for governor of New Jersey, is a graduate of Brown university and was occupied as the superintendent of schools in a New Jersey town from 1889 to 1893. His political career began in 1891, when he entered the legislature. He was continued there for eleven years. In 1901 he was appointed to the lucrative office of clerk of the chancery court and he has served for some time as the vice chairman of the Republican state committee. He is a native of Pennsylvania and is 44 years of age.

A Matter of Pride.
"I'll give you $50 for that bit of canvas," announced the man of wealth. "Couldn't think of accepting it," answered the poor artist. "It is not that I don't need the money, but my professional reputation would suffer if I let anything go at that price." "Ah," said the man of wealth. "Well, in that case I will give you $10 for it, and agree to tell all my friends that I paid $500." "Now you are making a proposition that I can afford to consider," said the artist. "Hand over the ten."

FAREWELL TO A NOBLE MANTHE WHOLE CITY MOURNED FOR MARSHAL HOGAN

AND ALL BUSINESS CEASED

As the Long Funeral Cortege Moved Slowly to the Church This Morning—Floral Tributes.

Only the subdued murmur of many voices and now and then the rumble of a street car disturbed the sudden stillness that fell upon all Janesville this morning. Occasionally a straggler in the city sought to open portals that were closed and looked wonderingly at the slow moving, silent throngs. And when he asked why there was no smiles on this bright morning, why merris and counters were deserted and doors closed, there was ever the same answer: "Our city marshal is dead—a brave, a noble and a good man. We bury him today."

"The Silent Tents." At nine o'clock many hundreds of people had gathered at St. Patrick's church to await the coming of the funeral cortege. A platoon of fire police under Captain I. F. Wortendyke guarded the entranceway. Presently the muffled tread of many feet announced the coming of the long retinue of mourners. The police officers of Janesville, Rockford and Beloit and the civic societies were the first to arrive. They halted in two long lines before the church while the Imperial band, playing softly that beautiful dirge—"The Silent Tents," the officers of the city, the honorary pallbearers, and the carriages of the bereaved family and relatives passed slowly to the doorway of the church.

Church Is Crowded. The civic societies to which the deceased belonged were admitted first, the fire police acting as ushers. Many were unable to enter, the edifice being packed to the doors. The interior was draped in mourning and there were rows of lighted candles upon the altar. Rev. J. J. McGinnis celebrated high mass and Father Collins of Fond du Lac and Father Ward of Beloit were in the sanctuary. The full choir of St. Patrick's church under the direction of D. D. Bennett sang the Gregorian requiem mass. Miss Beatrice Caldwell presiding at the organ. Rev. Dean McGinnis preached a strong, eloquent sermon from the subject "Our True Home."

Tribute to Departed. He spoke of his intimate acquaintance with Marshal Hogan for twenty-four years, during which time he deceased had been one of the foremost members of the church, serving for ten years as its treasurer. He spoke of the undeviating performance of duty which made this man honored and respected by his fellow men and of his ability to temper justice with kindness where the offender was not beyond all hope. Many times the good advice which the marshal had given to a prisoner bore fruit in a better and cleaner life. At other times it was used in an attempt to discredit the man who gave it. He touched on the sympathy which Marshal Hogan had for the parents of children and of his blameless life as a good and true husband and father. There was not a dry eye in the entire auditorium. During the service two quartette numbers—"Still With Thee" and "My God, My Father, While I Stray"—were rendered by the choir quartette and the service closed with the singing of "Nearer My God To Thee."

Bells Toll—Farewell. Just at eleven o'clock the bell at the city hall announced that the march to the cemetery had commenced. Then began the chant of the bells at the fire stations and churches. Mayor Hutchison and Chief Klein occupied the first carriage that turned upon Milwaukee street from High and led the way down Jackson and passed the city hall, where Chief Marshal John Brown, Chief School, of Beloit, Chief Woodman of Watertown, and Chief Woodman of Watertown followed four abreast. Then came the platoon of fourteen firemen, led by Capt. I. F. Wortendyke, S. C. Burnham, and E. D. Helmstreet. A column of twenty-two police officers followed. In the number were P. H. Casey of Milwaukee; Cassius Whipple, A. O. Chamberlain, Albert Roehl, and George Merrill of Beloit; Officers J. Sullivan, Quinn, Bupper, Reed, Saline, Stewart, Cavanaugh, Carlson, and Gilney of Rockford; and the entire Janesville force.

The Empty Carriage. The Imperial band, playing the dirge "Remembrance," preceded the aldermen and other officers of the city who marched on foot until they reached the city hall, where six carriages were awaiting them. The Ancient Order of Hibernians, the Catholic Knights, the Catholic Foresters, and the Janesville and Beloit councils of the Knights of Columbus followed. Then came the honorary pallbearers: Former Mayor Samuel Cobb, Postmaster Oscar Nowlan, Judge Fife, Judge Sale, Sheriff George Appleby, Former Mayor V. P. Richardson, Circuit Judge B. F. Durdelle, Former Mayor John Thoroughgood, District Attorney W. A. Jackson, and Former Mayor F. S. Baines. The funeral car, drawn by four beautiful black horses followed, four men from the fire department marching alongside the horses, and the pallbearers, Burt Wilbur, George Devlin, Henry Brazzel, D. W. Hayes, John Doran, and Joseph Connors acting as an escort. Immediately after came two members of the fire department leading the horse and empty vehicle, driven in the lifetime of the dead chief. Bound with crepe to the dashboard was the cane, the silent emblem of his authority, which John Hogan carried while on duty. The relatives and friends of the deceased in carriages closed the long cortege which was over a mile in length. There were over seventy vehicles in line, forty-nine being private carriages.

Beautiful Floral Tributes. The floral tributes alone told the story of the love and veneration of a people for the dead marshal. Of the set pieces there was a beautiful harp of chrysanthemums and roses from the city officials, a star of roses, smilax, and carnations from the fire department, another floral star from the police of Madison, an anchor, axe, and sword piece from the Knights of Columbus, a cross from the Catholic Knights, a broken column from friends, a spray of American Beauties from the Janesville Steam Laundry, and a spray of chrysanthemums from the Francis Murphy league. Besides these offerings there were individual tributes of carnations and roses in profusion. Father Collins of Fond du Lac gave a brief prayer and the remains were laid away in their last resting place.

COUNTY NEWS

MILTON.
Milton, Oct. 28.—The campfire of A. D. Hamilton Post Tuesday evening was liberally patronized as was the excellent supper, served by the Women's Relief Corps, that preceded it. Department Commander Norcross, of Janesville, gave some interesting reminiscences of the war from his viewpoint and Comrade Phil Cheek, of Baraboo, without whom a Milton campfire would be an oddity, followed with a talk. The college male quartet sang several selections in a pleasing manner and the "Old Vet" drum corps marched to the audience out to the tune of "The Girl I Left Behind Me."

Donation for Rev. A. L. McClelland Thursday, Nov. 17.
(The Ellwood entertainment Monday evening was fine in that line and the gentleman is an artist in manipulation and each feature of his work was finished and graceful.)

Dr. Chas. Armstrong, of Boscobel, visited Milton relatives Tuesday.

Mrs. P. Tomkins is back from her Omaha-Chicago trip.
Rev. S. H. Wheeler and wife, late of Boulder, Colo., are visiting their daughter, Miss Clara, who is attending college. They are en-route for their future home at Marlboro, N. J.

Alfred F. Isham, of the Milwaukee Free Press staff, visited his mother this week.

C. B. Reynolds and wife, of Deon, Iowa, are the guests of "Aunt" Lettie Reynolds.

A. B. Saunders, of Chicago, has been in town this week.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Williams spent the week in Chicago.

Mrs. G. R. Boss has returned from Hawarden, Iowa, where she attended the funeral of her brother-in-law, David Ring.

Mrs. E. Kellogg has returned to her home at Adams Center, N. Y.

Deputy Sheriff Cochran was in town Wednesday.

Station Agent Tomkins made a trip to Chicago Wednesday.

The Citizen's Association will hold its next meeting at Odd Fellows hall, Wednesday evening, Nov. 2.

RICHMOND.
Richmond, Oct. 27.—Mrs. J. G. Taylor of Whitewater visited with Mrs. J. E. Nott, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Emory Holbrook, of Whitewater, spent Sunday with relatives here and attended church services.

Miss Laura and Mr. Wiley Nott will entertain a number of their young friends at a Halloween party Saturday evening.

William Ward Cummings returned to his home in Delavan Sunday after a week's stay with his aunt and uncle.

The bean social at the parsonage Wednesday evening was quite well attended.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Jones visited friends here Sunday afternoon.

There will be a social at the home of Mrs. Nott on Friday evening, November 4.

Dr. C. T. Dike was called away on business a few days the forepart of the week.

Miss Martha Peterson died at her home this morning after a long and painful illness.

AFTON.

A Grand Old Soldier.

Troubled With Severe Pains in His Back for 30 Years.

I have been troubled with severe pains in my back and kidneys for over 30 years caused by exposure during the Civil War.

I tried many Patent Medicines and physicians but could secure no permanent relief.

A sample bottle of Dr. Fenner's Kidney and Backache Cure was given me and it did me so much good that I finally took several of your dollar sized bottles which effected a prompt and permanent cure.

It is pleasant to take. You may refer any one to me as I shall take great pleasure in recommending it.

INDICTS OHIO PRISON MANAGER

Official is Under Charges in Connection with Bank Failure.

Akron, O., Oct. 28.—Capt. Aaron Wagner, president of the Ohio state penitentiary managers at Columbus, has been indicted on two counts in connection with the failure of the Akron Savings bank. The bank's condition is said to be so bad that the jury recommends state legislation. The president of the bank is a member of the state legislature.

ELGIN BUTTER MARKET.
Elgin, Ill., Oct. 17.—Butter market firm. 21c; 75 tubs offered; no sales. Output, 673,200 lbs.

Fears Dynamite.
Rensselaer, Ind., Oct. 28.—Henry A. McCoy, the aged father of T. J. McCoy, whose handsome residence was destroyed by dynamite, has moved out of the house which stands on the same lot with the destroyed structure. The father fears that a similar attempt may be made on his home.

Origin of Ancient Saying.
It was formerly a trick among country folk to substitute a cat for a sucking pig, and bring it in a bag to market. If any greenhorn chose to buy a "pig in a poke" without examination, all very well; but if he opened the sack, "he let the cat out of the bag," and the trick was disclosed.

Canadian Trade Unions Have Declined to Send Agents to Great Britain and other parts of Europe to discourage emigration to Canada.

About one-third of all French trade unionists are organized similar to our national and international organizations. These, which include about 60,000 members, are about one-half of all the miners of the country. As now practically organized upon a national basis and the same is true to a greater or less extent of the metal workers, compositors, railway workers and members of the building trades.

Secretary Benham, of the California State Federation of Labor, is preparing the call for the annual convention of the federation to begin in Sacramento on the first Monday in January, 1905.

Ninety-five Japanese contract laborers were forwarded from San Francisco to Mexico recently by the Southern Pacific company. The men landed at the former place from Yokohama and were all under contract to a coal mining company at Las Esperanzas, for five years at a rate of 65 cents a ton.

By virtue of the Russian Emperor's ukase extending the privileges of residence to certain classes of Jews within the pale, the police have received instructions hereafter not to expel Jewish workmen from villages in which they have taken up their residence since 1882.

The West Australian Arbitration court, dealing with a quarrel of butchers for paying an employee less than the rates fixed by the court, ordered them to put the amount short paid—over $75.

"I say to myself that I would get that confession and learn where the marriage was made. Then I would burn the book that no one might learn. After I would say to you that I could tell who killed your father if you made me madame your wife."

"That's a very pretty plot," said Brendon. "So far you have carried it out. You have the confession"—Lola put her hand on her breast. "He is here," she said, nodding. "I carries him always—always."

"Give it to me, Lola."

"Her eyes opened in wide alarm. 'Ah, no, you will not ask me. I keep him to myself all.'"

"George saw that the moment was not propitious. But he was determined to get the confession before he left her. However, he begged her to continue her story. 'How did you know the house?'"

"It was the scarlet windows"—"I remember, Bawdsey gave you that for guide."

"Baw! He knew not I was going," said Lola, with a shrug. "I got out of him the fool man all that I did want. I thought I would get to the fat lady on the night you were with her, that I might have you for help if she was enraged."

"It seems to me that you protected yourself very well."

"With the daggers—oh, yes. I said to myself that if my George did not come for the fogs, that Mrs. Jersey you say—Jersey, oh, yes, would be enraged, and I would have trouble. I took the stiletto to save myself."

"How did you get into the house?"

"Wait, ah, wait! I did not dance all that night. I said I was ill, and I came away. I took the daggers and a cloak, and I went to the square—it is not far from my house."

"No. You just turn the corner of the street," said Brendon. "Well?"

"I walked by the walls. It was after 10 o'clock. I walk round and round the squares, and I then see a red light. The door open—it was open, and many people came out of the houses. The fat lady was on the steps, waving her hands—so." Lola waved her hand. "A crowd was around. I came into the crowd, and when the fat lady was down shaking with the handsake I did slip into the house."

"That was clever of you," said George, wondering at the dexterity with which Lola had managed to enter without exciting suspicion. "And then what did you do? Did you meet any one?"

"Ah, but no. I ran into a place. There was a room with a light, and that I did go into."

"Mrs. Jersey's sitting room," murmured George. "Yes?"

"I was afraid to be thrown out, my dear, and I hid behind a curtain of the window. The fat lady she did come in and close the door. She talked to herself of Lord Derrington coming, and did seem enraged at him wishing to come—understand?"

"Yes. What then?"

"She took from a box"—"A green box, Lola?"

"Yes, a green box—she did take a blue envelope, and she looked at a paper—a white paper she took from the envelope. She laughed, and said that mother would love to have this. I say to myself behind the curtains: 'It is the confession, I will have it.' Then she did put it in the envelopes and leave it on the tables. It was near me. I could steal!"

"And you did!" said George impatiently.

"But no, my George. I did try, and madame she saw my arm. With a cry she leaped to the doors. I came out."

and say that I wish to talk of the death of Monsieur Vane. She turns most white, and did not cry no more. Then she ask me what I want. I told madame I was of San Remo, and did talk of my dear mother, and of her love for Monsieur Vane. But this pig woman insult my mother. I become enraged, I bring my dagger and wave it so." Again Lola made a dramatic gesture. "I say that I kill her. She fall on her knees and hide her face. Then I did take the confessions out of the blue envelopes and hide it."

"That was very clever of you, Lola. Did Mrs. Jersey see?"

"Ah, but no she did not. I take it when she was with the eyes covered. Then having all what I was desired, and seeing her so afraid, I had the contempt look you. I say, 'There, there, and I throw the dagger at her feet. Then I go to the door and say I would depart. She beg me to stay. I did stop, and we talk of San Remo and of my mother. I say that you were my love, and that Monsieur Vane was the father of you'—"

"Then she knew who I was on that night?"

"Ah, yes, but she did. I say you wish to see her the next day. She say, 'I will tell him nothing, and now go, for I have to see a great gentleman.' I was quite happy."

"Did she not miss the confession?"

"No! I said nothing of wanting that. It was in my pocket. The blue envelope was on the table. She never thought but what it was within. Then she ask me to say nothing to any one about San Remo, and we part quite happy. She allowed me out of the door and closed it again, oh, so softly. I saw her no more."

"You left the dagger behind?"

"It was on the floor where I threw it. I wished to get away with the confessions—best she should call me thieves. I did not wait for to take the dagger. I departed. That is all."

"Triumph!" said George. The story seemed likely enough. After letting Lola out of the house Mrs. Jersey then came to see if he and Lola were in bed. Expecting Lord Derrington and knowing from Lola who he was, she no doubt expected George to interrupt the interview. But finding him, as she thought, in bed, she departed satisfied. Then she met Margery, and after locking her in her room went down to meet her death. It was 11 when all this happened, and Bawdsey, in the coat of Lord Derrington, arrived close upon 12. Therefore, as Lola left Mrs. Jersey alive and Bawdsey found her dead, she must have been killed in the interval, and who ever had done this had used the dagger left by Lola.

However, George had learned all he wished to know in the meantime, and it only remained to get the confession from Lola. She refused to give it up. George entreated, caajoled, stormed, insisted, but she still held out. "No, I will not; I will not," she kept saying. Finally he hit on a solution of the difficulty. "If you do not give it to me it will be taken from you when you go to prison."

"Ah, but will it?" cried Lola, wide eyed with alarm.

"Certainly, and will probably be published in the papers. Keep it if you like, Lola, but don't blame me if you get into trouble over it. I assure you if you keep it they will take it."

Lola pulled a white packet from her breast and ran with it to the fire.

George shot past her.

"They will not have it. I burn—I burn," and she threw the papers on the fire. George shot past her, snatched them out before they could catch alight, and thrust them into his pocket. Lola turned on him like a tigress, and he thought she would strike him. She seemed inclined to do so. Then unexpectedly she threw up her arms and fell into a chair weeping. "It is the end—you love me no more—we part—part. The confessions will part us, all—all, alas!"

CHAPTER XXI.

GEORGE returned to town with the confession of Mrs. Jersey in his pocket. On arriving at the Liverpool street station he wrote a note to Kowalski telling him of Lola's plight and advising him to engage counsel for her defense. In another half-hour he was in his own rooms.

After making a good meal, for he felt the need of food, he sat down to read a manuscript of Mrs.

The confession of the wretched woman who had come to so tragic an end was written on several sheets of foolscap loosely pinned together. She wrote in a most cold blooded way and seemingly exulting in her wickedness. All through her confession ran a venomous strain of deadly hatred toward George's mother, and indeed against any woman who paid attention to Vane. Jenny Howard was not spared, and the woman Velez, "who kept an oil shop," was mentioned.

"My parents were of humble station," began Mrs. Jersey abruptly. "I believe my mother was a lady's maid. She married my supposed father, who was a butler. I say 'my supposed father,' as I have reason to believe that I was the daughter of a certain Italian count who had loved and betrayed my mother. In her moments of rage my mother would taunt my supposed father with this, but when calm she always denied that there was any truth. When I grew old enough to understand she rebuked me for asking about the matter. 'You are my daughter,' she said abruptly, 'and the daughter of Samuel Stokes, who is the biggest fool and the greatest craven I know.'"

"It will be seen that there was no love lost between my parents. My father, Stokes—as I may call him, though I believe the count was my real sire—was always very kind to me and shielded me from my mother's rage. She treated me very cruelly, and when fifteen I was glad to go out as a scullery maid so as to escape her persecution. Shortly after I took up life on my own account she died in a fit of violent rage, during which she broke a blood vessel."

"It is needless to give my early life in detail. I rose from scullery maid to housemaid. Then I became parlor maid in a suburban villa, where the wages were poor and the food was bad. I took charge of children, when not doing housework and managed to get on. But I was ambitious. I wished to get among the servants of the aristocracy. A friend of mine who was maid to the Duchess of—taught me her duties, and I procured a situation. I pleased my mistress, and she promised to do much for me. However, she died, and I was thrown on the world. I saw an advertisement for a lady's maid and got the situation. It was in this way that I became the servant of that woman whom I hated so deeply."

"She was called Rosina Lockwood and was no better born than myself. Her father was a low man who taught singing, and she appeared herself on the stage. I never thought she was beautiful myself."

"At first I rather liked Miss Lockwood. She was kind to me in her silly way, and the gentlemen who were in love with her gave me plenty of money to deliver notes and other things. There was one gentleman who was the best of them all—and the biggest fool over her blue eyes and fair hair. His name was Ireland, and he had plenty of money. He came to learn singing from old Lockwood simply to be near her, and proposed three times to my knowledge. But she would have nothing to do with him, which was foolish, as he had money, and she could have twisted him round her finger."

"I was a handsome girl in those days, though I say it myself. But if a woman is good looking why shouldn't she say so? I had a perfect figure and a complexion like cream and roses. My hair was as black as night, and my eyes were sparkling and large. I taught myself to read and write, and I learned French. Also I learned to play the piano and to conduct myself like a lady, as I always was."

"I knew my own value and looked about for the gentleman who would give me my rightful position as a lady. From my Italian father I inherited aristocratic tastes, and I was not going to remain a low, vulgar common servant all my life, not me."

"Then he came to the house. Percy was his dear name, and his blood was very blue. Lord Derrington was his father, a most aristocratic nobleman, who was an old brute, from my experience of him. But he was of high rank I don't deny, and Percy had the blood of heroes in his veins. He came to take lessons in singing. But after a time I saw that he was in love with my mistress. It was her arts, that captured him, else he would have turned from her to me. But he never did."

"How handsome and fascinating was my hero Percy Vane! Fair hair and blue eyes and the figure of a life guardsmen—just the kind of man I liked. He was kind to me—for her sake, I suppose—and gave me money and presents. She said she loved him, and used to make me sick with talking of him. I let her think I was her dear friend, as if she had known my true feelings she would have sent me away."

"Lord Derrington was angry with Percy for loving my mistress, and I don't wonder at it, a low singing woman. Percy had some money of his own, inherited from his mother, and he proposed an elopement. He said that Lord Derrington could not leave the estates away from him and that some day he would come in for the title. She never lived to be Lady Derrington. I was glad of that."

"Well, they eloped. After singing at the house of a friend."

Clothcraft Overcoats

are as different from ordinary overcoats as day is from night.

It seems as if the majority of overcoats were made simply to cover the body without any thought of HOW they cover it.

That's just where Clothcraft Overcoats are different.

Their first purpose is to protect the body from exposure.

They accomplish that purpose admirably because the fabrics are all wool, and at the same time they have a style, grace and individuality that are distinctly theirs.

Look at the illustration of the Harvard and Yale models and you will see how Clothcraft Overcoats are tailored.

Note how neatly the collar fits, see how gracefully the coat hangs from the shoulders, giving ample room at the knee.

The whole garment seems a part of the man.

Only faultless clothing fits that way.

Wear a Clothcraft Overcoat and you'll be properly attired.

We will supply you at $10 to $35.

TAINTED BLOOD

Columbus, Ohio, May 19, 1903.
Some four years ago I was suffering from impure blood and a general run-down condition of the system. I had no appetite, was losing flesh, and had an all-gone tired feeling that made me miserable. I began the use of S. S. S. and after taking seven or eight bottles my skin was cleared of all eruptions and took on a ruddy, healthy glow that assured me that my blood had been restored to its normal, healthy condition. My appetite was restored, as I could eat anything put before me, and as I regained my appetite I increased in weight, and that "tired feeling" which worried me so much disappeared, and I was once again my old self. I heartily recommend S. S. S. as the best blood purifier and tonic made, and strongly advise its use to all those in need of such medicine. VICTOR STRUBBINS, Cor. Barthman and Washington Aves.

Wheeling, W. V., May 28, 1903.
My system was run down and my joints ached and pained me considerably. I had used S. S. S. before and knew what it was, so I purchased a bottle of it and have taken several bottles and the aches and pains are gone, my blood has been cleared and my general health built up. I can testify to it as a blood purifier and tonic. 1133 Market St. JOHN C. STRAIN.

If you have any symptoms of disordered blood write us and our physicians will advise you free. Our book on blood and skin diseases sent free. S. S. S. Specific Company, Atlanta, Ga.

Linens of all kinds for Saturday Oct. 29. A festival of unreasonable prices

A competitor speaking of our series of remarkable sales said: "Any fool can give goods away, but it takes a smart man to make a profit." Well! the public seem to appreciate our folly, and inasmuch as we pay cash for everything we buy; inasmuch as we get cash for everything we sell; inasmuch as we don't give our trade cheap chromos; inasmuch as we don't give our trade colored stamps; inasmuch as we don't lose a lot of money on bad debts (foolish things, we think, for any one to do), we propose to indulge in a little foolishness ourselves in the way of PRICES. We are going to sell you all lines of first class Dry Goods cheaper than others sell them.

AND ON SATURDAY WE CUT LINEN

20 pieces 72 inch Bleached Irish Linen Damask at 68c. worth $1.25 per yard. This is a new lot just received, and you never saw such a bargain. Every piece of Linen in our stock goes into this sale.
